Inference: Egyptian built the pyramids

1. Until about 1640 BC, Egyptian kings buried their dead in pyramids. In order for a king to be reborn and reunited with his father, the sun god Ra, in paradise after his death, numerous rituals had to be performed. The dead king's body was first preserved with chemicals and dressed in the finest robes to prepare it for rebirth. After that, a lengthy ceremony took place.

2. The God of embalming is Anubis in Egypt. For burial, Egyptian kings' bodies were preserved and embalmed. The Egyptians were of the opinion that the procedure would assist them in attaining eternal life. Before being placed inside a coffin, the embalmed body, or mummy, was bandaged and tied like a parcel.

3. A jewel-adorned coffin containing the king's body was loaded onto a ceremonial boat. A long line of mourners, courtiers, and priests followed his widow and children along the Nile to a temple near the pyramid where he would be buried. The king's body was laid to rest in a lavishly prepared tomb surrounded by his entire worldly wealth while the mourners feasted. The burial chamber was then sealed deep within the pyramid.

Inference: The newsprint Kesari

1. A reformer must be aware that people are moved by real life, not just writing. The books that were written by Lokmanya Tilak and other reformers sold little, but they had a huge impact on the media. It was common knowledge that their writing reflected and merely extended their exceptional lives. Their example and message gained weight due to the authenticity of their lives.

2. A writer can do whatever he wants with his life if all he does is inform, entertain, or even educate his audience. However, such contradictions cannot be tolerated by the author, who sets out to reform public life through his writing. His influence was ten thousand times greater while he was in prison, and the power of his words and speech significantly increased after he was released than it had been prior to his confinement.

3. After that, he turned his attention to raising people's political consciousness through the publication of two weekly newspapers, both of which he owned and edited: The Mahratta, published in English, and Kesari, also known as "The Lion", published in Marathi. Tilak became well-known for his harsh criticisms of British rule and of moderate nationalists who advocated social and political reform along Western lines and constitutional lines through those newspapers. He was of the opinion that social reform would only serve to divert attention from the political struggle for independence.

We today revel in the idea that we are living in a world of science and science can work wonders for us. It is evident that science has revolutionised modern life. What our forefathers, half a century ago, could not even dream of, we have that at our beck and call. Electricity is a wonder and what it is doing would have appeared to be a fairy tale for our forefathers. A button is pressed, the room gets flooded with light; the fan moves, the AC cools or warms the room, water is boiled or cooled, even frozen, eatables can be preserved for days. Human suffering has greatly been alleviated. Science has investigated into disease and found startling cures for them. Artificial limbs can be fitted into the bodies of the disabled, and even kidney and heart transplants are being performed.

Machinery has eliminated human labour and made life more mechanical and less arduous. Means of communication – the fax, the email, the mobile smart phones – are really wonderful means given to us by science. Atomic energy that if put to use for peaceful purposes can work wonders. We have begun to feel beholden to science and the scientists. But there is the other side of the picture too. Man has become a slave to the machines. Human labour has been minimised but that has led to a more luxurious living and less of physical activity. Mankind has begun suffering from such elements that life without the modern scientific gadgets is impossible. True, that all this has happened and which our hard-working forefathers never knew of; more and more use of machines has led to large scale unemployment. We are unnecessarily using chemicals for agriculture. The pesticides and germicides used in saving the crops are sending out such alarming signals as precariously depleting the ozone layer which protects Earth from the harmful radiation of the sun's rays. The world is getting exposed to the situations of great alarm and danger. GMOs are good for some crops and not so for others. Wild varieties cannot be allowed to go extinct. Furthermore, atomic energy is being used for destructive purposes and the nuclear explosions are causing radiations which are fatal for mankind. Can we ever forget what happened to Nagasaki and Hiroshima in Japan during the World War II? Do we want to live under such further threats of large-scale devastation and destruction?

Therefore, what is necessary is that we imperatively use science as our slave – take the utmost advantage from it but do not permit it to become our master. We have to keep the 'genie' under our control, use it for the good of mankind; cure disease with its help, explore treasures of the earth through it; communicate with one another at the quickest pace but keep its dangerous uses under check. Let science remain our 'slave' and not allow it to become our master. Let science, like Aladdin's 'genie', remain in Aladdin's controlling power, not to overpower and become a menace to mankind.

True, that all this has happened and which our hard-working forefathers never knew of; more and more use of machines has led to large scale unemployment. We are unnecessarily using chemicals for agriculture. The pesticides and germicides used in saving the crops are sending out such alarming signals as precariously depleting the ozone layer which protects Earth from the harmful radiation of the sun's rays. The world is getting exposed to the situations of great alarm and danger. GMOs are good for some crops and not so for others. Wild varieties cannot be allowed to go extinct. Furthermore, atomic energy is being used for destructive purposes and the nuclear explosions are causing radiations which are fatal for mankind. Can we ever forget what happened to Nagasaki and Hiroshima in Japan during the World War II? Do we want to live under such further threats of large-scale devastation and destruction?

Therefore, what is necessary is that we imperatively use science as our slave – take the utmost advantage from it but do not permit it to become our master. We have to keep the 'genie' under our control, use it for the good of mankind; cure disease with its help, explore treasures of the earth through it; communicate with one another at the quickest pace but keep its dangerous uses under check. Let science remain our 'slave' and not allow it to become our master. Let science, like Aladdin's 'genie', remain in Aladdin's controlling power, not to overpower and become a menace to mankind.

गाँधी जी विश्वास करते थे कि भारत में उन सब लोगों के लिए पर्याप्त रोजगार है, जो अपने हाथ – पैरों का उपयोग करते हैं और ईमानदारी से काम करते हैं। उनके अनुसार प्रत्येक व्यक्ति में काम करने की क्षमता है और वह अपने प्रतिदिन के भोजन से अधिक धनोपार्जन करता है, इस क्षमता का उपयोग करना निश्चित रूप में कार्य प्राप्त करना है। जो ईमानदारी से धनोपार्जन करना चाहता है, उसके लिए कोई काम तुच्छ नहीं होता है। सामान्यतः बेरोजगारी का अर्थ शिक्षित वर्ग की बेरोज़गारी समझी जाती है। गाँधी जी ने इसको व्यापक महत्व प्रदान किया। शिक्षित वर्ग कारखानों, दफ्तरों तथा खेती तक सीमित है, जो रोजगार – प्राप्त व्यक्तियों का अल्पांश है।

दयनीय स्थिति तो यह है कि तथाकथित शिक्षित वर्ग श्रम को महत्व नहीं देता और दस्तकारी से घृणा करता है। देश में व्याप्त निर्धनता और बेरोज़गारी का यही कारण है। यदि ग्राम – उद्योगों को प्रोत्साहित किया जाएगा और उन्हें ईमानदारी से चलाया जाएगा, तो देश से अल्पकाल में बेरोज़गारी दूर हो जाएगी।

Read the given passage and answer the questions that follow.

Idleness so called, which does not consist in doing nothing, but in doing a great deal not recognised in the dogmatic formularies of the ruling class, has as good a right to state its position as industry itself. It is admitted that the presence of people who refuse to enter in the great handicap race for sixpenny pieces is at once an insult and a disenchantment for those who do. A fine fellow (as we see so many) takes his determination, votes for the sixpences, and in the 42 emphatic Americanism, 'goes for' them. And while such an one is ploughing distressfully up the road, it is not hard to understand his resentment, when he perceives cool persons in the meadows by the wayside, lying with a handkerchief over their ears and a glass at their elbow.

Alexander is touched in a very delicate place by the disregard of Diogenes. Where was the glory of having taken Rome for these tumultuous barbarians, who poured into the Senate house, and found the Fathers sitting silent and unmoved by their success? It is a sore thing to have laboured along and scaled the arduous hilltops, and when all is done, find humanity indifferent to your achievement. Hence physicists condemn the unphysical; financiers have only a superficial toleration for those who know little of stocks; literary persons despise the unlettered; and people of all pursuits combine to disparage those who have none.

Read the given passage and answer the questions that follow.

The joys of parents are secret, and so are their griefs and fears. They cannot utter the one, nor will they utter the other. Children sweeten labours, but they make misfortunes more bitter. They increase the cares of life, but they mitigate the remembrance of death. The perpetuity by generation is common to beasts; but memory, merit and noble works are proper to men. And surely a man shall see the noblest works and foundations have proceeded from childless men, which have sought to express the images of their minds, where those of their bodies have failed. So, the care of posterity is most in them that have no posterity.

They that are the first raisers of their houses are most indulgent towards their children, beholding them as the continuance not only of their kind but of their work; and so, both children and creatures.

The difference in affection of parents towards their several children is many times unequal, and sometimes unworthy, especially in the mother. As Solomon saith, "A wise son rejoiceth the father, but an ungracious son shames the mother." A man shall see, where there is a house full of children, one or two of the eldest respected, and the youngest made wantons; but in the midst some that are as it were forgotten, who many times nevertheless prove the best.

Although religion does not inhibit the acquisition of wealth, although it does not hold up large fortunes as evil, the tenor of its teaching, by and large, is to induce an attitude of indifference to worldly things, things which gratify one's lower self and keep one engrossed in money-making. The student should be made to realise that the real goods of life are spiritual, love of things of the spirit and service of one's fellowmen, joy of an ordered disciplined life. These are blessings money cannot buy. What is wealth before such things of the spirit? Of all religious teachers, Jesus Christ has dealt more comprehensively than any other with the problem of wealth in all its aspects. He may be called the greatest exponent of the science of wealth. With only four words "Blessed are ye poor!" he changed altogether the values which man attached to human existence and human happiness and acquisition and possession of wealth. Real bliss consisted, he taught, not in riches nor in anything else which the world regarded as prosperity or felicity, but in the joy and happiness derived from being at peace with one's fellowmen through perfect love and fellowship and selfless service and sacrifice.

The word "poor" on the lips of the Master had a spiritual significance – the poor so far as they were poor in spirit, humble before God, simple, God-fearing, teachable, faithful, it could surely not have been his intention to hold up destitution and privation as a blessing in itself, that would have turned life into a terrible ordeal and it would have been heartless to exhort the poor to believe that money was not necessary for one's sustenance or the joys and blessings of life. Even things of the spirit cannot be had without money. Extreme poverty is as liable to lead to the stagnation and impoverishment of the soul as excessive wealth. Not outward poverty but inward spirit was what Jesus Christ desired and demanded. Every religion asks a man to regard his wealth as a trust. Giving in charity for the relief of the poor and public welfare is not merely an act of compassion, not merely a religious duty, but also an act of social justice. All the gospels of wealth are based on the fundamental concept that none can claim an absolute or inherent right to property.

Everyone holds it in trust from God to promote the good of mankind. All rights to private property are subject to this primary obligation to God and man.

Then he went into the office. It was a large, bare room with two desks in it and a bench along one side. A number of natives were seated on this, and a couple of women. They gossiped while they waited for the administrator, and when Mackintosh came in they greeted him. "Talofa-li." He returned their greeting and sat down at his desk. He began to write, working on a report which the governor of Samoa had been clamouring for and which Walker, with his usual dilatoriness, had neglected to prepare. Mackintosh, as he made his notes, reflected vindictively that Walker was late with his report because he was so illiterate that he had an invincible distaste for anything to do with pens and paper; and now when it was at last ready, concise and neatly official, he would accept his subordinate's work without a word of appreciation, with a sneer rather or a gibe, and send it on to his own superior as though it were his own composition. He could not have written a word of it. Mackintosh thought with rage that if his chief pencilled in some insertion, it would be childish in expression and faulty in language. If he remonstrated or sought to put his meaning into an intelligible phrase, Walker would fly into a passion and cry: "What the hell do I care about grammar? That's what I want to say and that's how I want to say it." At last Walker came in. The natives surrounded him as he entered, trying to get his immediate attention, but he turned on them roughly and told them to sit down and hold their tongues. He threatened that if they were not quiet, he would have them all turned out and see none of them that day. He nodded to Mackintosh.

The definition of a madrigal is a song for several voices that is a setting of a poem. Popular from about 1520 to 1650, performers mostly sang madrigals acapella, meaning without instrumental accompaniment. The style originated in Italy but flourished in many other European countries. What is the Renaissance madrigal? It developed from a form of secular vocal music and verse in the 14th century, but singers transformed it in the 16th century. The Renaissance madrigal used richer poetry and developed much more complex music. From its origins in Italy, the madrigal flourished in many other European countries in the 16th and 17th centuries. In England, the form was immensely popular in Elizabethan times. The English madrigal was the only version that differed substantially from its Italian counterpart. In about the 1520s in Italy, people began to write manuscripts of madrigals. These musical pieces were quite different from their 14th-century counterparts. The older versions were for two, or rarely three, voices, with much ornamentation. Their verse was mostly pastoral, consisting of two or three stanzas of three lines each, plus a final couplet. At this point, the music was composed for performance by skilled amateur singers. What distinguished madrigals from earlier forms of vocal music was that they were always secular. Previously, most music had been religious, and madrigals were among the first styles to depart from that tradition. Their themes were social, and composers wrote the verses they used in the vernacular rather than the Latin of sacred music. Where sacred music had been smooth and predictable, madrigals might include dissonance and sudden shifts of melody or rhythm. Renaissance madrigals were also through-composed, meaning that each line of verse had its own music with no internal repetition as there had been in earlier years. Even if lines of verse were repeated, music rarely was.
